I want to say that I understand the proverb "A bird may be known by its song" like you can see the person by actions. If a person speaks loudly, always happy and likes spending time in groups, you will always find this person in a crowd.

For example, I have a classmate. Her name is Nastya, and I will find this girl from everywhere. Why? Because she always smiles, running in the school corridors, makes noise and arguing. I will see her if she's in class, but I'm in the class. She makes lots of noise, and that's how she explains the proverb.

In conclusion I want to say that the proverb explains how people do something, talk about something, and how can find them from the other. Each person is individual, and that explains "A bird may be known by its song".
